

The gas strut is normally mounted so that the piston rod points downwards. This is so the damping functions properly and for the seals to be lubricated.

